

(roll film)

Sixth District Republicans, in an enthusiastic convention at Hotel Roanoke, nominated by acclamation

(take film)

Representative Richard H. Poff to run for his sixth term in Congress. Convention Chairman M. Caldwell Butler said Poff's ten years in Congress have fully qualified him to properly represent the district. In a verbal poke at Democratic candidate Wheeler, Butler said if the Kennedy administration has an oversupply of anything, it is college professors. In his acceptance, ~~Rex~~ Poff speech, Poff verbally tore into his opponent for not taking a definite stand.

(sound up. end cue: