

((((Start film)

Down South Boston way - someone forgot to mention to a dog and a rabbit that they're supposed to be enemies.

((Show film))

At any rate, the dog - a small canine named "Cha-Cha" likes to use children's swings for exercise. And reports have it the pooch isn't happy unless his faithful companion "Thumper" takes to the swings with him. "Thumper" is a large white rabbit who seems to enjoy this type of recreation, too.

The dog is owned by Debbie Thaxton; the rabbit by Betty Charlton. The girls have been training them for some time. There are times when Thumper jumps on "Cha-Cha's" back and takes a ride around the yard.

But right now, they're content with swinging together. There's no indication that Cha-Cha has any desire to eat Thumper - just as long as Thumper keeps on swinging.

(Back)